

AIDS: Improving the Odds

Care and treatment for currently healthy people who are HIV-infected or at high risk

A panel discussion sponsored by the Columbia Gay Health Advocacy Project

Tuesday, November 17th, 7:30 p.m. to 11:00 p.m.

Lecture Halls A & B, Ground Floor, Columbia Law School Building
116th St. and Amsterdam Avenue, New York, NY
Capacity of the hall is limited — arrive early to guarantee seating

Program

Some current treatments for people at high risk but not diagnosed with AIDS

Azidothymidine (AZT), Jeffrey Laurence, M.D.
Aerosol pentamidine, Donald Armstrong, M.D.
Active lipids (AL721), Michael Lange, M.D.
Naltrexone and antabuse, Bernard Bihari, M.D.

Preventive care for healthy people at high risk for AIDS

Richard P. Keeling, M.D. Joseph Sonnabend, M.D.
Jeffrey Laurence, M.D. Daniel William, M.D.

New treatments for HIV infection: prospects and obstacles

John James, Publisher, AIDS Treatment News

Panel

Donald Armstrong, M.D.

Chief of Infectious Disease and Director of Microbiology Laboratory, Memorial-Sloan
Kettering Hospital; Professor of Medicine,
Cornell University Medical Center

Bernard Bihari, M.D.

Director, King's County Addictive Disease
Hospital; Clinical Associate Professor of Psychiatry, SUNY Brooklyn

Michael Callen

Vice-President and Founding Member, People
With AIDS Coalition; representative from People With AIDS Health Group

Barry Gingell, M.D.

Director, Medical Information Div., GMHC

John James

Publisher, AIDS Treatment News

Richard P. Keeling, M.D.

Director of Student Health Service, University of Virginia; Chairman, Task Force on AIDS,
American College Health Association

Donald Kotler, M.D.

Associate Professor of Clinical Medicine,
St. Luke's/Roosevelt Hospital Center

Michael Lange, M.D.

Assistant Chief of Infectious Disease and Epidemiology, St. Luke's/Roosevelt Hospital
Center; Associate Professor of Clinical Medicine, Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons

Jeffrey Laurence, M.D.

Director of Laboratory for AIDS Research and Assistant Professor of Medicine, Cornell University Medical Center

Joseph Sonnabend, M.D.

AIDS practitioner and researcher

Daniel William, M.D.

Clinical Instructor in Medicine,
St. Luke's/Roosevelt Hospital Center; founder,
New York Physicians for Human Rights

Moderators: Laura Pinsky, Paul Douglas
Columbia Gay Health Advocacy Project

The Columbia Gay Health Advocacy Project gratefully acknowledges funding for this event from the Columbia Gay and Lesbian Alliance and the Columbia University Health Service