Love safely this week and all year long.

Condom Awareness Week at Columbia has been organized, funded, and presented by the Columbia Gay Health Advocacy Project, the Barnard AIDS Peer Educators, and the Office of Health Education of the University Health Service.

Since 1985, the Columbia Gay Health Advocacy Project has provided AIDS counseling and education, anonymous HIV antibody testing, help with AIDS-related harassment and discrimination, and other services to hundreds of members of the University community. Call 280-2878 and ask for an appointment with a Gay Health Advocate.

The Barnard AIDS Peer Educators are a group of Barnard and Columbia undergraduates trained to educate students through facilitating discussions and implementing projects dealing with various aspects of AIDS. We are sponsored by the Barnard Student Health services. Call 280-2091 or 280-2092 for more information.

The Office of Health Education of the University Health Service is the home of the Women's Health Advocates, Dr. Whoopie's Assistants (Peer Sexuality Educators), Pregnancy Options Counselors, and the Against Violence Advocates. Call 280-5453 for more information.
