“People aren’t supposed to die before they graduate from college or before they find a lover, or before they go through their first mid-life crisis.”